

ACC Offer to NCF Members

Who are ACC?

WCS's CEO Christine Asbury "We looked at how we could bring play back into learning and development." - Hear more from Vic Rayner and Christine Asbury discussing WCS's use of ACC here

ACC is a Skills for Care 'Centre of Excellence' learning provider and a Skills for Care 'National Learning Provider of the year' Accolades finalist. ACC provides learning and development solutions for both residential and home care providers.

A membership driven organisation, ACC write, film and produce educational TV programmes and courses on behalf of our members. ACC work in partnership with international care industry subject matter experts, leading sector bodies and care providers.

ACC's membership consists of over 900 care homes and homecare providers from both the not for profit and for profit sectors.

ACC provides:

- Content-rich, and engaging programmes, filmed with real people in real life situations, ensuring principles are relatable and will improve practice. Courses intentionally highlight the human faces of care
- Comprehensive learning resources which underpin the courses, including personalised learning schedules and pathways for individuals and organisations
- Live broadcasts throughout the year, providing managers and care workers with unprecedented access to leading experts

How will ACC provide support you as an NCF member?

- An opportunity to discuss with your fellow NCF members who are also members of the ACC learning community about how they are using ACC to promote a culture of continuous learning and development – with outstanding care at its heart.
- An opportunity to become a member of ACC's learning community at a 20% discounted rate
- Special Events to support you to recruit, retain and develop your staff

If you would like to talk to us about your Learning and Development goals for individuals and your organisation, or arrange to talk to an NCF member from our learning community, please contact ACC on 01908 318990 or email us at msuk@acctv.co.
